Are you interested in a Master of Accounting degree but lack the prerequisite classes? Then the Raymond A. Mason School’s Summer Bootcamp program is for you.

Many students who majored in a different discipline discover an interest in accounting and decide to pursue further study. Mason’s Summer Bootcamp program will get you up to speed with the prerequisites just in time to start the degree program.

Starting in late June each year, the intensive sequence of courses includes:

+ Principles of Accounting (2 week format)
+ Financial Reporting and Analysis (2 week format)
+ Advanced Financial Reporting and Analysis (2 week format)
+ Cost Accounting (1 week format)
+ Auditing and Internal Controls (2 week format)
+ Introduction to US Taxation (1 week format)

A great foundation for the Master of Accounting program, Summer Bootcamp will also give you the opportunity to meet fellow students and recruiters before the program begins.

“Of course this Bootcamp experience was very different than my first boot camp with the Army, yet there are some rough parallels with regards to whipping you into shape. In addition to the academic benefits, the William & Mary Bootcamp offered the opportunity to meet other students before the start of the degree program. It was a great bonding experience.”

- Carol Curley, MAcc ’12

This is the ideal opportunity to catch up on prerequisite classes for non-accounting majors.
