Please be on the lookout for any informational emails from the MBA Program as this will be our last newsletter for 2020.

Enjoy your Winter Break!

COVID-19 Updates

William & Mary has established a call center at (757) 221-7420 to answer questions or report concerns related to the fall semester. Staffed by three William & Mary employees, the call center is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

After-hours, community members may ask questions by emailing COVIDResponse@wm.edu or visit https://covidconcerns.wm.edu to report unsafe behavior. William & Mary Police dispatch is available at (757) 221-4596 for urgent matters.

Need Advising?

During the Fall 2020 semester all academic advising will be done virtually. Please book an appointment by visiting the Full Time MBA Bookings Page.
The consequences of COVID-19 have been numerous. Some have been positive, some negative, and some have been eye-opening. Like the news that hundreds of thousands of women are leaving the workforce. In fact, leaving at four times the rate as men. Some of the departures are due to layoffs in hard-hit sectors like hospitality and retail, but that’s not the driver behind the numbers. In many cases, women are leaving to homeschool their children and serve as caregivers. The fallout has the potential to be felt for years that erases some of the gains made by women in leadership roles. Jane Stevenson is Global Leader for CEO Succession, and Vice Chairman, Board and CEO Services for the global organizational consulting firm Korn Ferry. She joins us today to discuss why women are leaving the workforce and what organizations can do about it.
