Podcast Spotlight: Women are Leaving the Workforce with Jane Stevenson

The consequences of COVID-19 have been numerous. Some have been positive, some negative, and some have been eye-opening. Like the news that hundreds of thousands of women are leaving the workforce. In fact, leaving at four times the rate as men. Some of the departures are due to layoffs in hard-hit sectors like hospitality and retail, but that's not the driver behind the numbers. In many cases, women are leaving to homeschool their children and serve as caregivers. The fallout has the potential to be felt for years that erases some of the gains made by women in leadership roles. Jane Stevenson is Global Leader for CEO Succession, and Vice Chairman, Board and CEO Services for the global organizational consulting firm Korn Ferry. She joins us today to discuss why women are leaving the workforce and what organizations can do about it.

Did you know that listening to two Leadership & Business podcasts are equivalent to one speaker credit. After listening to the podcasts, you simply e-mail FlexMBA.Program@mason.wm.edu with the names of the podcasts you listened to in order for your speaker credit to be applied.
