Illini and Longhorns Garner No. 1 in Peers' Accounting Program Rankings

BYU records 15th consecutive top 3 finish.

This year's school rankings yielded a blend of old and new in the results.

University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign and University of Texas at Austin topped the list of the most admired undergraduate, graduate and doctoral programs in the United States, according to PAR's 28th Annual Survey of Accounting Professors.

Accounting educators cast ballots in record numbers for PAR's Annual Survey of Accounting Professors for the third consecutive year.

More than 1,900 accounting educators, 1,921 to be exact, participated in this year's survey. University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign took the No.1 spot in the undergraduate accounting program rankings, with University of Texas at Austin taking the top spots in the graduate, teaching doctoral and teaching research rankings.

In the undergraduate rankings, UIUC and UT-Austin reversed roles from last year.

UIUC took the top spot by a fairly significant margin over UT-Austin.

The Longhorns took No. 1 in the undergraduate rankings last year, with UIUC finishing as runner-up.

UT-Austin had held the top spot in the undergraduate rankings since 2001.

Last year's top finisher in the graduate rankings, Brigham Young University/Provo, Utah, took the No.3 spot in undergraduate and

PwC Nabs Top Spot in Professor Rankings

KPMG and Deloitte forge second-place deadlock

When the professors' grades were turned in for PAR's 28th Annual Survey of Accounting Professors, PricewaterhouseCoopers received the highest marks.

Accounting professors ranked the Global Seven firms in nine categories: Business Outlook, Client Service, Technical Savvy, Staff Training, Compensation, Career Opportunities, Work/Life Balance, Diversity and Ethics. The accounting educators "graded" the firms on a scale of 1 (poor) to 10 (excellent).

More than 1,900 accounting educators, 1,921 to be exact, from 361 colleges and universities participated in this year's survey.

PwC's overall score is one of the largest margins of victory for a firm in recent years.

The 2009 rating is a rebound from last year's fourth-place finish.

The firm has held the No. 1 overall spot in the survey outright, or tied for No. 1, six times since 2000.

PwC occupied the top spot in the survey in 2007, 2005, 2003 and 2002 and tied for first place in the 2000 rankings with Andersen, which, until then, had taken the solo top slot each of the 18 previous editions of the rankings.

PwC finished second in 2006 and 2004. In addition to last year, the firm placed fourth in 2001.

PwC took the top overall ranking on the strength of finishing first in five of the nine survey categories: Future Outlook, Client Service, Technical Reputation, Staff Training and Career Opportunity. The firm placed second in Compensation

DTT Global Revenues Fall Just Short of Top Spot

DTT posts smallest growth rate decline, among Big Four, in terms of U.S. dollars.

Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu just missed tying for the title of largest accounting firm based on global member firm revenue.

DTT FY09 revenue tipped the scales at $26.1 billion.

The largest firm, PricewaterhouseCoopers, had FY09 network revenues of $26.2 billion.

DTT's global revenue growth rate came in at a 1% gain in local currency. The firm's revenue growth rate in terms of U.S. dollars declined 4.9% from the previous year.

By comparison, Deloitte had a global revenue growth rate of 18.6% in U.S. dollars and 13% when measured in local currencies for FY08, 15.5% in U.S. dollars and 12.6% in local currencies in FY07, and in FY06, 9.9% in U.S. dollars and 11.5% in local currencies.

The firm's Consulting service line was the fastest growing of the four areas, at 7.3% in local currencies and 2% in U.S. dollars. It was the only service for the firm produce a positive growth rate in both local currencies and U.S. dollars.

The Tax service line produced growth, albeit slight, at 0.8% in local currencies and decline 5.5% in U.S. dollars.

Ezzell Awarded AICPA Gold Medal

Former AICPA Chairman William Ezzell received the AICPA's 2009 Gold Medal Award for Distinguished Service at the fall meeting of the AICPA governing Council. Former AICPA chair Kathy Eddy presented the award. The Gold Medal is given to individuals who have made appreciable contributions to the CPA profession and is the highest award granted by the AICPA. He is currently a member of the research advisory board for the Center for Audit Quality, an autonomous public-policy organization dedicated to enhancing investor confidence and public trust in the global capital markets, and the board of trustees for the Committee for Economic Development, a nonprofit, nonpartisan, business-led public-policy organization dedicated to policy research on the major economic and social issues of our time and the implementation of its recommendations by the public and private sectors. He serves as a delegate on the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Center for Market Competitiveness. The former Deloitte partner's past accomplishments include the establishment of the Accountants Coalition in 1992. He chaired that special task force created to reform the liability laws affecting the profession. Ezzell is also a past president of the AICPA's Foundation Board of Trustees.

Denham Recieves AICPA Medal of Honor

Robert E. Denham, a partner with the law firm Munger, Tolles & Olson/Los Angeles, received the AICPA's 2009 Medal of Honor at the fall meeting of the AICPA governing Council. Former AICPA chair Kathy Eddy presented the award. The Medal of Honor is the AICPA's highest honor presented to a non-CPA and is awarded to an individual whose work has influenced the profession significantly. Denham is a public member of the Institute's Professional Ethics Executive Committee, as well as a founding member of the Independence Standards Board, established in 1997 jointly by the AICPA and the SEC to develop independence standards for auditors of SEC registrants.

WMD&Co. Rolls Out New Name, New Logo and Improved Web Presence

Watkins, Meegan, Drury & Co./Bethesda, Md. officially changed its name to Watkins Meegan, along with unveiling a new logo and launching what the firm termed as an improved and more interactive and functional website, www.WatkinsMeegan.com. The firm said its rebranding campaign started earlier this year, with two distinct goals in mind: to refresh its visual image and to ensure that Watkins Meegan's Web presence is up-to-date and supplies useful information. Watkins Meegan affiliate Watkins IT built the site and is implementing it. In addition to supplying information about the firm, its services and its staff, the Web site also features an events calendar, a resource library and Watkins Wire, a frequently updated blog. Complementing the launch of the improved Web site, the firm launched Watkins Meegan Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter sites. ■ and tied for second in Diversity.

PwC also scored the highest, among the Big Four firms, in the Ethics category.

Observant trend watchers may have handicapped PwC as the favorite in this year's analysis when the survey went out this fall. PwC and Deloitte have traded the No. 1 spot ever since Deloitte broke PwC's two-year hold on the Professor's Survey crown in 2004.

Deloitte tied for the overall No. 2 ranking, outpaced everyone to finish No. 1 in the Compensation category and placed second in two of the nine firm rank categories: Future Outlook and Technical Reputation. The firm tied for No. 2 with KPMG in the Career Opportunity category.

KPMG followed-up on back-to-back ties for second finishes with another second place tie.

The firm duplicated its highest finish ever in the annual professor rankings with yet another tie for second this year. KPMG topped the individually ranked firms in the Diversity category for the fourth year running and placed second in two of the nine firm rank categories: Client Service and Staff Training. The firm tied for No. 2 with Deloitte in the Career Opportunity category.

Ernst & Young slipped to fourth in the rankings.

It is worth noting that fourth place was only .03 behind KPMG and Deloitte, tied for second.

Grant Thornton, finished fifth in the overall rankings, but took No. 1 in Work/Life Balance and the Ethics categories.

It marked the third consecutive year professors graded GT at the top in both categories.

The really big news for the firm was its unprecedented close finish to the Big Four.

BDO Seidman and RSM McGladrey finished tied for sixth place.

In addition to giving their perceptions of the Global Seven firms, the survey gave professors the option of writing in firms they were familiar with in addition to the Global Seven, and nearly 32% of the professors weighed in with their perceptions of other national, regional and local firms they felt were worthy of recognition.

While responses were too few to be statistically valid to be compared to the Global Seven firms, a good number of national, regional and local firms received write-in recognition from schools with in their geographic footprint.

Crowe Horwath/Oak Brook, Ill. received the most write-in votes for the third consecutive year (7.01 overall, including a 7.74 rating in the Compensation category and 7.75 in Outlook for Business Success) followed by Dixon Hughes/High Point, N.C. (8.15 overall, including an 8.79 rating in Outlook for Business Success, 8.59 in Staff Training and 8.48 in Technical Reputation) and Plante & Moran/Southfield, Mich. (7.00 overall score; including an 8.50 rating in Ethics).

BKD/Springfield, Mo. received an overall score of 6.75, with a grade of 7.16 in Outlook for Business Success.

Horne/Jackson, Miss. Received an overall score of 8.25, including an 8.00 in Technical Reputation and a perfect 10.00 in Work/Life Balance.

Caturano and Co./Boston and LarsonAllen/Minneapolis garnered the most flattering ratings from professors among firms that were ranked by more than two professors but less than 10 professors. The Boston powerhouse and LarsonAllen earned an overall rating of 8.75. It marked the fourth consecutive year that Caturano was tied for or held the distinction on its own of receiving the highest overall scores among firms ranked by more than two professors but less than 10 professors.

Among firms that were ranked by fewer than three professors, Blum Shapiro/West Hartford, Conn.; Kostin Ruffkess/Farmington, Conn.; Monroe Shine/New Albany, Ind.; Rothstein Kass/Roseland, N.J. and Witt Mares/Newport News, Va. each received perfect 10's as overall scores.

Editor's Note: This survey seeks to measure the perceptions that accounting faculty members bring to that advisory role and is not intended to be scientific. ■

School Rankings Explanation

Because the participation level in PAR's professor survey has increased so substantially since 2005, PAR felt that the Top 25 rankings for undergraduate graduate and doctoral were good, they may not be giving a complete picture compared to earlier years when the survey had far fewer participants. This year we decided to present the overall rankings as we traditionally have and offer an expanded look based on separating schools in one of three groups, Group I, Group II and Group III. The groupings were based on a methodology tied to number of teaching professors at the institution. Group I is the largest, Group II mid-size and Group III the smallest group. ■ graduate accounting program rankings, according to the school-ranking section of PAR's 28th Annual Survey of Accounting Professors.

BYU has finished in the Top 3 in both the undergraduate and graduate rankings since 1995.

University of Florida/Gainesville, Fla. earned the distinction of the largest upward move on the undergraduate rankings, jumping from No. 21 a year ago to No. 10 in this year's rankings.

Wake Forest University/Winston-Salem, N.C., Bentley College/Waltham, Mass. powered their way into the 2009 Top 25 rankings after garnering honorable-mention attention last year.

UT-Austin was able to leapfrog BYU and UIUC to retake the top spot in the graduate rankings.

While UT-Austin made its move, several other schools made significant moves as well, with Michigan State University and Ohio State University both muscling into the Top 10. The competition for the graduate Top 10 was so stiff there actually were 12 schools in the group, as there was an unbreakable four-way tie for ninth.

As was the case in the undergraduate rankings, Florida made the biggest move compared to last year in the graduate rankings. The school went from No. 21 to No. 13 in the grad rankings.

Two schools (Virginia Tech and College of William & Mary) made the leap from unranked in 2008 to making the graduate list in 2009.

This year, the doctoral rankings were expanded to rank the schools professors had the most regard for in terms of producing the best accounting teachers and accounting researchers.

Even with the split, UT-Austin finished in the top spot for both.

The fact that the Longhorns hooked the top doctoral billing shouldn't be too much of a shock.

For most of the decade, the Longhorns held the distinction as the No. 1 firm in the doctoral rankings, taking first in 2002, 2003, 2004, 2006 and 2007. Stanford University was No. 1 in 2000; the University of Chicago ranked first in 2001 and 2008, and Michigan took No. 1 in 2005.

University of Chicago took No. 2 in the doctoral program rankings in terms of research, while Stanford University took No. 2 in doctoral teaching.

In both the teaching and research categories, the margin between No. 2 and No. 3 was extremely slim.

Editor's Note: The Annual Survey of Accounting Professors school rankings seeks to measure the perceptions accounting professors' perceptions regarding the accounting programs they feel most consistently turn out students capable of some day attaining partner status and is not intended to be scientific.

The school rankings are based on professors' ranking of accounting programs on a 1 to 10 scale in answering the question, "which programs consistently turn out students capable of some day attaining partner status?"

Ranking eligibility in the undergraduate category requires a school to offer a bachelors degree in accounting, not a bachelors degree in business with a concentration in accounting, with a few exceptions, and graduate programs must offer a Macc degree or Masters in Taxation, with a few exceptions. In the cases where we have made case-by-case exceptions, the curriculum is comparable to schools that do offer the bachelors degree in accounting.

In the Ph.D. rankings the methodology is a little different from undergraduate and graduate rankings. While in those undergraduate and graduate rankings we don't allow rank schools that have a business degree with a concentration in accounting, for Ph.D. programs PAR does allow Ph.D.s with a concentration in accounting.

PAR also allows Ph.D. programs to be ranked that don't specialize in accounting.

In ranking Ph.D. programs, survey participants named Ph.D. programs they had the most regard for in turning out accounting professors in terms of teaching and this year they also named Ph.D. programs they had the most regard for in turning out accounting professors in terms of research. ■

Program rankings by school size appear on page 5.

Deloitte FY09 Revenue by Service Line

Service line	2009 Revenues ($ bil)	US Dollar Growth	Local Currency Growth
Audit	11.9	-6.40%	-0.80%
Tax	5.7	-5.50%	0.80%

The Audit service line declined slightly in local currencies 0.8% and more so in terms of U.S. dollars, 6.4%.

The Financial Advisory Services line posted the steepest declines among the four service lines. The area posted a 6.1% drop in local currencies and 13.8% in U.S. dollars.

The firm said financial advisory-services decrease was related primarily "to substantially decreased merger and acquisition activity."

The Asia Pacific region had positive revenue growth both in terms of local currency and U.S. dollars, 7.6% and 4.7%, respectively.

The firm said the region was the fastest-growing region for the fifth consecutive year.

The Europe, Middle East and Africa region (EMEA) posted positive growth of 2% in local currency, coupled with a decline of 9% in U.S. dollars.

The Americas region posted a decline of 1.3% in local currency and 3.7% in U.S. dollars.

Despite all the doom and gloom that could surround these figures, Deloitte highlighted the fact it continues to make substantial investments pointing to its decision to begin construction on Deloitte University in Westlake, Texas. The 712,000-square-foot campus, expected to open in 2011, is an investment of approximately $300 million.

Another "highlight" the firm pointed to was the U.S. member firm's acquisition of substantially all of the assets of BearingPoint's North American public sector practice.

Deloitte's financial results came in ahead of results reported by its Big Four rivals, PwC and Ernst & Young.

E&Y's global revenue decreased 0.2% in local currencies and 6.8% in U.S. dollars, with worldwide revenues for FY09 falling to $21.4 billion.

PwC saw its global revenue growth rate up slightly to 0.2% at constant rates of exchange to US$26.2 billion. At variable rates of exchange, the firm's revenue growth rate declined 7.1%. ■
